During operation some combinations of approved dimmers and LED lamps/fittings may exhibit a buzzing sound. This sound may be more pronounced in environments with very low DB levels and thus sound noisier.

Historically this noise may have come from vibrating components in the lamp, transformer and dimmer and the buzzing can still exist, but for different reasons. This could be due to the interaction of components from the circuitry in the dimmer and the lamp &/or driver. Additionally, the supply voltage can induce further noise which electronic circuitry is more sensitive too. Provided the supply voltage is within specification and the tested dimmers are published as compatible by both the
